Flip Out Safety Briefing Example

To ensure that Flip Out is providing a safe experience for all, it is critical that staff deliver a safety briefing to all participants as they check in. Head Office is developing a safety video that will replace this briefing with time. Until this is produced, staff must run through the following points with participants:

"Flipping around at Flip Out is fun, but does come with some inherent risks. To reduce the chance of an injury, it's important that you listen to all staff instructions and all of this briefing. If you do not listen to staff instructions, you may be asked to leave the arena.

For safety, all participants need to be wearing a pair of grip socks. All hazards, such as jewellery, glasses or sharp objects, should be left with your shoes. Lockers are available. While at Flip Out, ensure that you are not running. You're here to jump after all.

Only one person is allowed on each trampoline at a time and you are not allowed to double bounce other flippers. Ensure that you are looking out for other participants in the arena, especially younger children. Always land feet first in the foam pit and wait for the foam pit supervisor's "all clear" before jumping in. Always jump within your ability. If something does go wrong, or if you have any questions please inform the staff in black and green around the arena.

Do you understand or have any questions?"
